

Wireless Help Alarm

All 'Help Alarm Systems' installed by Astbury, comply with The Equality Act (DDA)

Our engineer will assist the client to record a suitable help message, and program up to three phone numbers that will be dialed should the 'panic' button be pressed.

Should assistance be required the user need only simply push the illuminated button on the necklace style control button.

The Wireless Help Alarm system will then dial up to three pre-programmed telephone numbers, and play a message for you. Whoever answers the call has the ability to listen and speak to you via the hands free base unit, by simply pressing any button on their telephone.

Our professional engineers can install this system in to your existing phone line and have you up and running within the hour!
